Washroom

Did you know?

A study conducted by the University of Arizona found that our cell phones can carry up to 10 times more bacteria than most toilet seats. In restrooms, floors, sinks, and handles tend to rank higher than the toilet seat in terms of germs. Flushing also causes bacteria to spray into the air, so be sure to get out of the stall ASAP.

The most important thing you can do to avoid getting sick from using a public restroom is to wash your hands thoroughly afterwards. Work up a good lather for at least 20 seconds and use a paper towel to turn off faucets.

Best Practices for Feminine Hygiene Disposal

A study by the American Society of Microbiology stated that "the outside of a sanitary napkin receptacle is one of the most contaminated 'hot spots' in the ladies room" due to regular physical contact and mists produced by flushing toilets. To combat this, receptacles should be thoroughly disinfected when emptying them.

Which Stall is the Cleanest?

Contrary to popular belief, the toilet stall closest to the restroom door is typically the least used and likely the cleanest. According to a 2015 survey from New York Magazine, the majority of both men and women actually prefer to use middle stalls when they are available.
